The Future of Mental Healthcare

Wednesday, January 21
6:30pm to 7:30pm
UH Hilo Campus, UCB 100

Presented by the University of Hawaii at Hilo
Faculty Congress and the College of Continuing Education and Community Service

Recent studies show that mental illness is highly common in our society—about 25% of people in the U.S. suffer from a mental illness. This presentation will explain:

• what mental illness is and how common it is
• how it affects individuals, families, and society
• the current state of mental healthcare treatment options (psychotherapy, medications, lifestyle modifications, other biological interventions, and new technologies and advances on the horizon); and
• the future of mental healthcare in the context of advances in science and medicine, as well as relevant policy implications.
